community growing?

• Growing of vegetables, fruit and sometimes flowers on land that is not in person’s own private garden
• Usually involves a group of people growing on the same piece of land either separately or communally
• Happens in a range of different ways: allotments, community gardens, landshare, community orchards, community supported agriculture, workplace growing, edible landscapes...
• Happens in a range of locations: sites designated for growing, school grounds, backgreens, housing estates, temporary greenspaces....
What difference will it make?

- Help people be creative about community growing
- Explore the range of community growing options and practicalities of different approaches
- Coordinate and combine the efforts of local community growing initiatives and projects
- Increase the number and range of people and groups growing food in their area
