

Leadership Webinars

OD recognise the challenges our leaders have in managing time constraints and setting aside time for development activities especially with the specific challenges we currently face and the need for social distancing. Short, intensive remote development sessions can be a useful way of learning. Rather than spending a full day covering a relatively wide range of topics, our leadership sessions will focus on specific topics, concentrating on key issues rather than the broader picture.

The next session is:

“Being the Calm, Professional Leader You Want To Be”

Anecdotal observation suggests an identified area of concern is the ability to remain calm and professional when dealing with challenging situations. The desired outcome of the session is an enhanced ability to secure positive results whilst expending a minimum of emotional energy, channelling emotions into constructive behaviour thus enabling more consistent and professional behaviour, benefitting the manager themselves and the staff member, with the intention of strengthening organisational effectiveness. Specific outcomes may include:

- Increased awareness of how emotions impact the way we work, our responses to and relationships with others.
- An improved awareness of and ability to manage their own behaviours.
- Retaining a professional position rather than personalising situations even those which manifest as a personal attack or personal criticism.
- Greater confidence and personal resilience, even when issues take time to resolve or recur.

It is intended that participants will leave with a practical “take away” and a motivation to learn more. This is a pragmatic session based on sound theory but focusing on its practical, everyday application, in an interesting and enjoyable way.

Who will benefit from attending this session?

Leaders who are seeking useful insights into behaviours, and wish to explore personal techniques and practical applications in challenging situations in order to achieve positive outcomes.
